James P. Reber, best known as the Founder of San Jose Repertory Theatre, has been raising funds for a myriad of causes since returning to Silicon Valley in the late '70s. From Arts to AIDS to Youth to Health and many, many more, Mr. Reber has been a dedicated worker in support of the charities and community organizations in Silicon Valley, and has raised over $25 Million.

Mr. Reber has been CEO of a few nonprofits, including San Jose Rep, the Walk For AIDS, Young Audiences, and Inner-City Games, the San Jose branch of Arnold Schwarzenegger's National Charity.

Mr. Reber has raised funds as an Executive Director, as a consultant, through annual campaigns, capital campaigns, fundraising banquets, celebrity events (Joe Montana, Clint Eastwood, Senator Bob Dole, Joan Baez, and many others), walk-a-thons, fun runs, auctions, grant proposals, corporate campaigns, festivals, concerts, selling tee-shirts, and by “the old fashioned way of just asking.”

The experience of helping the less fortunate in a wealthy, prosperous community has been “alternately tough, funny, daunting, inspiring, challenging, but always life fulfilling.” Audiences are often surprised at how entertaining and uplifting (and funny) these adventures are.

An experienced and gifted speaker, Mr. Reber entertains and informs and is an ideal guest speaker for an organization interested in hearing from someone in an occupation that few really understand, but by which most people are very much affected.

Adventures of a Silicon Valley Fundraiser is suitable for audiences of all ages; it is a 20 to 45 minute speech & Mr. Reber will take questions.
